Money

When you buy something, you trade money for it. If you give a pizza delivery person the right amount of money, you get a pizza.

When you buy things like books, toys or food, you are buying goods.

When you pay someone to cut your hair or take your picture, you are buying a service.

You can save your money in a bank. The bank will keep your money safe until you need it.

What if you don't have enough money to buy something you want? You can save your money until you have the right amount.

It is important to spend money carefully. Most people do not have enough money to buy everything they want and need.

Many people share some of their money with people in need. Sharing money with others is called donating money.

In the United States, our paper money is called dollars. Some of our coins are pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters.
